Recent Operations

By Paul Hardin

Walter Locke, Miami Daily News columnist, on Tuesday wrote one of the most interesting columns to appear recently in any newspaper. It is reproduced below:

Gen Dwight Eisenhower was born in Denison, Texas, in 1880. Denison is a small city of 15,000 now. It was a smaller city then. He was early moved to Abilene, Kan., a "country town" of 20,000 people, many more than Denison was at the time. Eisenhower was a boy from the country who rose to the highest fame as a commander of his country's armies in his country's most tremendous war.

Outranking Eisenhower, and likewise honored the world around him, is George Catlett Marshall, the commanding general of the armies of all the armies of the United States.

Marshall was born at Uniontown, Pa., in 1880. Uniontown is a little city of 20,000 now. It was a small town then.

George Marshall was a boy when he made good in the big city of Washington.

John Joseph Pershing was born in Linn county, Mo., in 1860. There are only 20,000 people in all Linn county now. The number was smallest 35 years ago.

John Pershing was a lad who rose from the Missouri backwoods to the high command of his country's armies in the First World War. He lives, one of his country's most revered citizens, in the great city of Washington now.

Simon Bolivar Buckner, Jr., was born near Munsterberg, Ky., in 1886.

Munsterberg is to this day too small to list among towns of more than 2,500 inhabitants. In the country near this obscure place, that General Buckner, Jr., who was, likeable, leading his troops in the hour of victory at Okinawa. This country had made good, as Gen. George Marshall did, at the Virginia Military Institute, the road to high command in his country's armies in its greatest war.

Lamar, Mo., is a village of 3,000 people now. It was smaller when Harry S. Truman was born there in 1884.

The lad from this village and the community is now president of the United States, commander of all the fighting forces of the United States. He is a boy from the "sticks" who made good in the big city afterwards.

If the president's advice concerning the succession to the presidency is followed, the speaker of the house comes in line for president.

Just that, now, would be Sam Rayburn, present speaker of the house.

Sam Rayburn was born in Roane county, Tenn., in 1882. All Roane county has now but 27,000 people. It had fewer in 1882. Sam Rayburn, who may be put in line for president, is a country boy who moved from Tennessee to Texas, served in the legislature there, came to congress and became the presiding officer of the house.

A country boy etc., etc.

Ernest Joseph King was born in Lorain, Ohio, in 1878. Lorain is a small city now, about 44,000. It was much as large in 1878. Even yet it is one of the smaller cities of inland America.

Ernest King, born in this city of less than 50,000, is head of the navy of the United States.

Cities of fewer than 50,000 people have been known to reproduce themselves. Critics of larger size argue that population, to keep going and growing, must import people from the country around.

The town of Clark, Mo., is too small to register on the map. Born there in 1883 was Omar N. Bradley, celebrated now as one of the most brilliant commanders in his country's greatest war. He enters now under a most arduous task in the big city of Washington.

This is Douglas MacArthur, born in Arkansas, backwoods state, in 1880. Clark, Mo., with its wife rules the seas while MacArthur scourges the islands; he was born in Fredericksburg, Tex., a town of 3,500 people now, his Daniel Webster, Henry Clay.

Congressmen Are Praised For Vote On Reciprocal Act

By Paul Hardin

The vote of south Florida's congressmen, Pat Cannon of Miami, Durward Rice of Fort Lauderdale, against the extension of the Reciprocal Trade Treaty Act, passed by Congress last Thursday, was the opinion of Florida's vegetable growers, LaMothe Gravell, manager of the Florida Vegetable Committee.

Representing considerably more than fifty per cent of the acreage of vegetables produced in Florida, the Florida Vegetable Committee has been in close touch with tariff legislation affecting the industry and has been particularly concerned with the interests of competition resulting from wartime reduction of duties on vegetables from Cuba and Mexico to 25 per cent of former rates.

There is now being produced in Florida nearly 30,000 carloads of vegetables annually, a factor of outstanding importance in the position of strength the people of the United States.

Gravell pointed out that after years of effort and more than 100 different types of meetings, tariff committee meetings, congressional committee meetings, etc., a duty was imposed on foreign vegetables.

"That duty was not proportionate," he said, "to help equalize the difference in the cost of production and delivery to the markets in the United States between foreign and domestic products." Gravell explained.

"My opinion is that the consumer has never been penalized by the imposition of this duty because the items of vegetables are highly perishable and must move quickly into consumption. Consequently the price cannot be fixed on them."

The grower in Florida, however, has not been penalized.

"It was intended to help equalize the difference in the cost of production and delivery to the markets in the United States between foreign and domestic products," Gravell explained.

"My opinion is that the consumer has never been penalized by the imposition of this duty because the items of vegetables are highly perishable and must move quickly into consumption. Consequently the price cannot be fixed on them."

Tampa and Hillsborough county reported road damage in the thousands of feet, cut roads were washed out, roadsides washed away, and low area inundated.

The Alafia river rose 12 feet in five hours, flooding large areas as far as 11½ inches of water.

THE NORTH FLORIDA WRIGGLE

The stalemate at Tallahassee over reappointment of senatorial districts which is costing the taxpayers upwards of $3,000 a day is a disgrace to the state. The responsibility, of course, can be charged to the North Florida bloc of senators who won't give an inch.

Under the constitution it is the duty of the governor to call the law-makers into extra session if they fail to perform their duty at the regular session. This Governor Caldwell has done. But it does not appear that he has been too helpful to them in their deliberations after issuing the call. It is understandable why the governor cannot take an active part in seeking a solution of the controversial problem between a North Florida man and a fair reappointment of the senate, under the constitution, would undoubtedly shift the balance of power in the senate from the northern part of the state to the southern part.

If the South Florida minority senators agree to any proposal that may be advanced for the submission of a constitutional amendment, to get around the present mandate, they will sacrifice a principle of representative government. They will never again be able to retrieve. Even though some such agreement may be entered into, it is an open question but what the whole business will not be turned down at the polls when it comes up for ratification, as South Florida can vote it down. That result, of course, would leave the situation as it is at present, and give the victory to North Florida.

The onus of an equitable reappointment rests upon the North Florida senate majority. The South Florida minority will make a mistake if they allow the majority bloc to wriggle out of the responsibility.—Odele Star-Banner.

A BLOW FOR HYPOCRISY

The legislature, in killing the bill outlawing pinball machines, has struck a great blow for hypocrisy. In 1937 slot machines, high-powered robbing of the poor man, were outlawed in the state. In 1941, however, a bill was put through legalizing pinball and other machines played "for amusement only."

The phrase "for amusement only" must have been inserted for the amusement of the legislators. For obviously, the provision was unenforceable. It is a symptom of the state of affairs that whenever a grand jury or legislative session or a police department appears ready to go on a momentary rampage, those important people are quickly withdrawn from action. If they are being played without payoffs, why should they die a grand jury? Why should an innocent man fear the light?

As a matter of fact the machines were anything but "innocent." Nor were they so intended. The "for amusement only" law was nothing-in-the-check dodge which permitted the operators of the various types of slot-machines, gambling tops, or uncheked under a cloak of the rankest hypocrisy. The house bill to end this hypocrisy by banning slot and pinball machines, period, was the obvious answer if a necessary one.

Now the bill has been killed in the house. The only conclusion one can draw is that certain interests in this state are, shall we say, disproportionately powerful in legislative circles.—Miami News.

TOO LATE TO CLASSIFY

by Russell Kay

After three weeks of delay and bickering, the legislative session no nearer the solution of its problem than at the beginning of the extraordinary session called by Governor Caldwell to provide for representation.

With the Senate split wide open on sectional lines, North Florida representatives determined to retain the advantage they now hold and South Florida members and while some legislators feel that a man is a man to secure a just and equitable deal for the southern end of the State, the session remains hopelessly deadlocked.

Efforts to renew the session or hold it from Tallahassee to Jacksonvile have met with no success complishment, but if South Florida through a powerful voting bloc were to turn out en masse to fort to oppose an North Florida bill and got bitter enough, a South Florida Governor could veto every North Florida bill and North Florida would not have the voting power, even with its present advantages, to pass such legislation over his veto.

In a strong editorial on the subject, the Tampa Tribune News says:

"Let's enter the session with balloons. Florida's good South stands ready to accept the challenge thrown down by the shortsighted men of North Florida.

We propose a call for a South Florida counties. Let us meet before the primaries and choose a slate of Solid Men. Let us agree among ourselves and then let's have the men that slate go to work and elect a solid group of officials to run the State. We have the votes. Has anyone accused us of lack of courage? Let's get together in all our associations and fight to protect our constitutional rights. We can and will elect a South Florida Governor, Secretary of State, Treasurer, Attorney General, Comptroller and other officials. We will sweep the State house so clean our North Florida friends will fail to recognize it; and if they suddenly have a rude awakening, they will have only themselves to blame."

In the face of this threat, Senator Amos Lewis, spokesman for the North Florida group, turns the other cheek and loudly asserts that North Florida will not be inclined to retaliate and points out: "We in North Florida vote for candidates on the basis of qualifications and fitness for the office, not on race or religion on account of their domicile. We have voted for South Floridians in the past and will continue to do so if they are qualified to hold office."

With each day that the extraordinary session continues the feeling seems to grow more intense and under some kind of a long-ago agreement is reached soon, the feeling between North and South Florida will reach a stage where it will be difficult to check. Because of its voting power, North Florida will never be able to stand solidly behind a slate of its own which could play merry hell with the present political set up. Some mighty good men would be elected and new faces would appear on the Supreme Court, et cetera.

To provide the best possible service under existing conditions, the Florida East Coast Railway is currently adding fifteen new Diesel-electric locomotive units to its Diesel fleet.

Acquired primarily to speed essential war and military traffic, this modern new motive power will also give communities on the East Coast of Florida a standard of passenger service, which few sections enjoy.

The Florida East Coast Railway was the first in the South to afford cheap, cinder-free travel behind oil-burning steam locomotives. It now becomes the first in the South, and one of the few railroads in the country, to equip practically all of its main line passenger trains with smooth, swift, Diesel-electrics, the modern motive power of today and tomorrow.

Florida goes FORWARD!

One hundred years ago, Florida launched its state government with the opening of the state legislature on June 23.

In the century since, Florida's population has leaped from less than 10,000 to more than 2,000,000. Her people have labored on scores of timely based on numerous beneficial gifts of nature, including a climate of health and beauty.

This year, looking back, we are filled with pride at the progress of our state. We pay tribute to the contributions of our citizens, especially the women of whom Disney, Plant and Flagler are the most famous, and all their belief in Florida. Florida today is a great state.

And again this year, looking forward, we the people of this state cross the threshold of the future determined that we shall leave nothing untried in our efforts to develop our state for millions of visitors to enjoy her climate and natural beauty.

We are determined, too, of being about "first" in many things, including such vital successful industries, farms, groves and supply.

We collectively, as citizens of Florida, are proud to coordinate our efforts with our state's promotional program to develop our economy more rapidly.

Cinematic Chatter By Malcolm Millar

"Three is a Family," that's the name of show for Sunday-Monday at the Prince Theatre, and permit me to tell you it is one of the funniest shows I have sat through this year.

Then there's the six Matson passengers, Charles Ruggles, Helen Broderick, Fay Bainter, Arthur Lake, Hattie McDaniel, Jeff Donnell, Walter Catlett, and Clarence Kolb, and every one of them should be starred.

The daughter of Chas. Ruggles comes home with twin girls, (the cutest twins you ever saw), and she's been married off in an already crowded apartment in New York. The rules of the hotel are No Children, and Arthur Lake and his wife, who is expecting a baby, should be thrown out because of the crowded arrangement.

Fay Bainter, Chas' wife, works for the living of the family and Helen Broderick is her sister, living with the girls for twelve years. Helen is about to marry the man in the house and the twins, which bring forth peals of laughter.

Tuesday-Wednesday brings a double feature. First is "The Unwritten Code," which stars Tom Neal and Ann Savage and features with Howard Freeman and Ronald Arno and several other well known names in featured roles.

According to the story, an American prison ship is torpedoed and two German officers survive. They escape onto a raft, to which comes an English officer. They kill him and one of the Germans assumes his identity. The two Germans are picked up and sent to a capital in the United States. There they find the lying the German to be the dead British officer, invites him to her home. Her boy friend becomes suspicious, obtains a photograph of the dead British officer and unmasks the German impostor who is shot and killed while trying to get away.

Second picture is "Thoroughbreds" which stars Tom Neal, Roger Pryor and Adele Mara and features with Leonid Kinskey, Eddie Hall, James Gleason and Paul Harvey. This is the story of a horse breeding between a young cavalry officer and his horse. When the cavalry is mechanized, the horse is sold to a racing track. The owner, searching for his horse, meets the girl and romance leads to blossoms.

Thursday-Friday also advertises double features. First one is "Shylock," starring with Linda Christian and Robert Mitchum, and Walter Brennan, Dame May Whitty, Eugene Pelleire, Alan Mowbray, Florence Bates, Howard Da Silva, Michael Redgrave, Ward Bond, Paulette Goddard and Paul Henreid and Paul Stanton in featured roles.

The story centers around the will of an eccentric millionaire, Jack Haley, and insurance salesman, Tom Neal, who, in his will, became known in the efforts of the heirs to carry out the terms of the will. The corpse is stolen, the attorney murdered, and the real detective does his bound and gagged in a secret passage before Haley and the dead man's niece discover the real culprit.

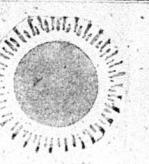

Saturday brings "Mystery Man," starring with Alan Ladd as Hop-along Cassidy and Alice Faye and unreels one of the most interesting Western stories we have screened for some time—Man," See you at the movies—Man."

To provide entertainment for hospitalized service men when being returned to this country, activities of the U. S. O. and service clubs will have to be stepped up. This effort is supported by the National War Fund and your support makes it possible.

National Airlines Broke 3 Records

JACKSONVILLE, June 28.—
FINS—National Airlines, Inc., has broken operating records in May 1945, according to H. S. Parker, Jr., Nat'l Vice Presid.

National flew more revenue passengers, more revenue miles and carried more revenue passengers than in any other month in its ten years of operation.

In this short period of time National has taken its place among the leading airlines of the nation and its refined credit on its able management and upon Florida, its home state.

Passenger rates are so small they can be carried in a coat pocket or a ladies' pocket book. And a reception possible anywhere at any time of day, can be looked for in the post-war period, according to the Florida Manufacturers' Association. The remarkable time advancement in the production of midget radio tubes makes such sets possible.

Thanks to the operation of numerous Farmer's Co-operatives in Florida, fresh, good food products have been made available to the housewife at less cost. Farmer Co-operatives reduce costs to the consumer, increase returns to the farmer.

In a recent survey made by McGraw-Hill Publishing Company 169 plants reported the use of 16,805 electric devices.

Sub-contracting will play an important part in peacetime production of railroad equipment. Officials of the Pullman Standard Car Manufacturing Company report that for passenger cars alone there will come from 100,000 to 500 concerns in over 20 different states.

After 12 years of suppression by the Nazi German weekly, the Frankfurter Presse, leading democratic organ in Germany was resumed in 1945 by American Army editors. It was founded in 1856.

Telephone operators at the Navy Department at Washington have gone early and exclusively maritime. Instead of the former "thank you" answer to callers, the operators now say, "Aye, aye."

The Internal Revenue Department reports a new high—seven billion dollars spent for liquor in the U. S. in 1944; they drank 19 million more gallons than in 1943 and it foots up $4 gallons for each man, woman and child.
